Molecular BioSystems

'This journal strives to be a thought leader in the field, publishing not only some of the best new research, but also reviews and forward-looking articles by leaders in the field'

Professor Thomas Kodadek

Molecular BioSystems is dedicated to publishing important research at the interface between chemistry, the -omic sciences and systems biology: this can be as communications, full papers, reviews, and opinions.

Molecular BioSystems was recently awarded an impact factor of 4.12* (68% increase on last year's figure) which is a sure indication of the significance of the work published in this exciting interdisciplinary journal.

The journal will appeal to chemical biologists; biological chemists; biochemists; molecular and structural biologists; drug discovery scientists; protein chemists; bio- and cheminformaticians; organic, biological, analytical, physical and inorganic chemists and materials scientists.

Topics:

Chemical biology including small molecule probes of biological structure and activity, chemical genetics, enzymology, directed evolution, protein engineering and display technologies.

Systems biology approaches including simulation and modelling, data manipulation, integration and analysis techniques, high-throughput technologies.

Proteomics and genomics approaches including structural and functional proteomics and genomics, spectroscopic and chromatographic techniques, chip-based technologies, array technologies and imaging techniques.

Cellular processes including signalling pathways and mechanisms of signal transduction, molecular recognition and interactions, transport and secretion, cell-cycling and division, cell death.

Metabolism including bioenergetics and energy transfer, endogenous and exogenous metabolic processes, micro- and macrometabolism, metabolic control, metabonomics.
