

Showcasing research from Professor Honghao Hou's laboratory, School of Basic Medical Sciences, Southern Medical University, Guangzhou, P. R. China.

Transdermal drug delivery via microneedles for musculoskeletal systems

Microneedles, with the advantages of oral administration and local injection, have become a novel strategy for administration and treatment of musculoskeletal diseases. We emphasized the progress and broad applications of MN-based transdermal drug delivery for MSK systems.

As featured in:

See Honghao Hou et al.,
J. Mater. Chem. B, 2023, 11, 8327.